

The theory of International relations

Exam questions

1. Ideas about international relations in the history of political thought
2. Politics as the main component of international relations
3. The emergence and development of the theory of International relations
4. Subject and object of the theory of International relations
5. Goals and objectives theory of International relations
6. The relationship between the concepts of “international relations” and “international politics”.
7. The relationship between the concepts of “international relations” and “world politics”
8. Methods in the theory of International relations
9. General methods: sociological, cultural, normative
10. General methods: functional, behavioristic, anthropological
11. General methods: psychological, comparative, historical
12. Applied methods: situation analysis methods, explicative
13. Applied methods: predictive methods
14. Basic principles of idealism
15. Prominent representatives of classical idealism (Locke, Montesquieu, Rousseau)
16. Prominent representatives of classical idealism (Kant, Grotius, A. Smith).
17. The collapse of the world system of communism and the victory of liberalism
18. The concept of war in liberalism
19. Liberalism - hidden diplomacy, balance of power
20. Collective security in liberalism
21. Basic principles of neoliberalism
22. Soft power concept in neoliberalism
23. General characteristics of realism
24. Formation of a realistic concept of the world in the 20th century
25. Principles of realism by Hans Morgenthau.
26. National interest in realism
27. The main representatives of classical realism
28. Thucydides` s concept of realism
29. Hobbes and Machiavell` s concepts of realism
30. Basic principles of neorealism
31. K. Waltz as the founder of neorealism
32. The English School as an approach between idealism and realism
33. Realist, rationalist and revolutionary paradigms of the English School
34. General characteristics of marxism
35. International relations in the works of K. Marx and F. Engels
36. The origins of constructivism
37. General characteristics of the debates in the theory of International relations
38. The essence of the first debate in the theory of International relations
39. The essence of the second debate in the theory of International relations

40. International system in the theory of International relations
41. The structure of the international system
42. National Interest and Power in International Relations
43. The concept and structure of national interests
44. Elements of national interest
45. Different interpretations of national interest
46. Factors influencing the formation of national interest
47. The concept and structure of power in the theory of International relations
48. General characteristics of foreign policy
49. The relationship between domestic and foreign policy
50. G. Morgenthau on diplomacy
51. Diplomacy and international law
52. Conflict as a social phenomenon
53. Characteristics of international conflict
54. Destructive and constructive conflict
55. International conflict
56. Characteristics of war
57. Conditions and types of international cooperation
58. Disagreement and Cooperation
59. Characteristics of international cooperation
60. Integration in the International relations